TEMPERANCE.

LAKE TRADE WILL CLOSE NOVEMBER 15

All Traffic over Local Terminal for Lakes Will Then Be Discontinued.

Traffic over local railroads for the great lakes will be discontinued after November 15, according to a report just received at local railroad offices. It was the intention of the navigation companies on the great lakes to hold the season open to a later date this year on account of many manufacturing concerns in the North not being able to lay in a large supply of fuel, but according to the notice received here yesterday, the navigation companies consider that too dangerous, and will officially declare the shipping season closed on November 15.

Local railroad officials claim that in view of the fact that many of the large industries have been unable to store away a sufficient supply of fuel, and which rely on the lakes for transportation of the same, will suffer more or less loss. Much of the coal for these industries is supplied by the West Virginia mines and the lack of tonnage is due to the trouble experienced by operators in the shortage of labor. Thousands of miners being called to Europe to take up arms for their respective countries brought on the shortage conditions.

The announcement by the navigation companies little more than a week ago awakened interest in the railroads and they have been striving in every way to increase the coal tonnage to the lakes, even assisting the operators in securing labor for their mines.

It was stated by a local official that while the navigation companies will officially declare the season closed to shipments on the above date, they will, nevertheless, continue to load until the weather becomes too severe for safe navigation. This may be one week or longer, thus giving the industries a chance to store away fuel after the declaration is made.
